NEW CENTRAL WISCONSIN CHILDREN'S MUSEUM INTERACTIVE LEGO LAB MADE POSSIBLE IN PART BY PREVAIL BANK CHARITABLE CONTRIBUTIONS PROGRAM

Prevail Bank has donated $3,250 to the Central Wisconsin Children's Museum to help encourage local youth to get familiar with and better understand engineering and the design process. With this donation, Prevail Bank is helping to develop a new STEM-based learning experience for those in the greater Stevens Point community.

Cory Rusch, Director of Development at the Central Wisconsin Children's Museum, states, "With Prevail Bank's outstanding help, our new STEM Lego Lab provides opportunities for individuals and groups to practice engineering and design processes. Focusing on Lego Technic and Education, the Lab covers everything from basic and simple engineering to advanced robotic construction and coding. Yes, participants can build and battle robots. Yes, participants can create architecture. Yes, participants can build and race vehicles. With growth in this new exhibit, we expect lots of good, educational fun."
